ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

This invention describes novel architectures for molecular arrays and methods for using the same. Also described are methods to use the invention in conjunction with fluidic devices. The molecular arrays consist of DNA, RNA, proteins or peptides, or any other molecule of interest. The uses of such arrays include genomic and proteomic analysis, diagnostic assays, and drug discovery.